(Proper use of earnings forecasts)

The forward-looking statements, including earnings forecasts, contained in these materials are based on certain assumptions deemed to be reasonable by the Company and its subsidiaries (“the Company Group”) and include risks and contingencies. Actual business results may differ substantially due to a number of factors. For more details, please refer to the section of “(2) Information regarding consolidated earnings forecasts and other forward-looking statements in Qualitative Information Regarding Consolidated Results for the Nine Months” on page 5.

Qualitative Information Regarding Consolidated Results for the Nine Months

(1) Information regarding operating results (Nine months ended September 30, 2018)

A. Overview

In the global economy, the economy gradually recovered in the US on the back of solid employment conditions and robust personal consumption. On the other hand, the recovery in Europe slowed due to a lull in exports, and growth also decelerated in China. The Japanese economy continued to make a modest recovery, driven by improved employment conditions and personal consumption.

In this environment, in the first three quarters of the fiscal year (from January 1 to September 30, 2018), shipments of substrate glass for liquid crystal display (LCDs) were solid. In glass fiber for high-performance resin, the US glass fiber business subsidiary (Electric Glass Fiber America: EGFA) that the Company acquired in September, 2017 contributed to higher sales. As a result, sales exceeded the levels in the first three quarters of the previous fiscal year (from January 1 to September 30, 2017).

On the other hand, in addition to work to increase production capacity and measures to improve facilities, etc., at EGFA and Electric Glass (Xiamen), such factors as the goodwill amortization at EGFA, rising prices for raw materials and fuel, and foreign exchange losses, resulted in profit down over the same period in the previous fiscal year.

(Net sales)

Electronics and Information Technology:

Shipments of substrate glass for LCDs were solid, although prices fell slightly. Sales of cover glass for mobile devices (glass for chemical strengthening) remained strong on the back of rising levels of adoption by customers. Glass for electronic devices experienced a gentle recovery in line with the trend of the home appliance market, but glass for optical devices was affected by slowing demand for certain products in the third quarter (from July 1 to September 30, 2018), leading to growth turning negative. Shipments of substrate glass for solar cells were weak.

Performance Materials and Others:

The third quarter saw weakness in shipments of glass fiber for high-performance resin, due primarily to the impact of a seasonal dip in operating rates at European customers, but the above-mentioned acquisition of EGFA contributed to an increase in sales. Heat-resistant glass was affected by inventory adjustments at some customers, but overall it has been recovering. Shipments to China of glass tubing for pharmaceutical and medical use recorded growth. Sales of glass for building materials showed resilience.

(Profit/loss)

In the first three quarters of the fiscal year, the first quarter (from January 1 to March 31, 2018) and the second quarter (from April 1, 2018 to June 30, 2018) were affected by work done to improve productivity and increase production capacity at EGFA, as well as up-front costs related to the ramp-up of new facilities at Electric Glass (Xiamen). In the third quarter, shipments of glass fiber to European customers declined due to seasonal factors. In addition, operating profit was depressed by the goodwill amortization at EGFA, rising prices for raw materials and fuel, and other factors. Ordinary profit and profit attributable to owners of parent were affected by foreign exchange losses attributable to the revaluation of receivables and payables related to loans to certain overseas subsidiaries. Conversely, amendments to the retirement pension system at a subsidiary in the Netherlands (Electric Glass Fiber NL) resulted in extraordinary income.

(2) Information regarding consolidated earnings forecasts and other forward-looking statements (Consolidated earnings forecasts for the year ending December 31, 2018)

(Billions of yen)

	Year ending December 31, 2018
Net sales	300.0
Operating profit	31.0
Ordinary profit	29.0
Profit attributable to owners of parent	20.0

Note: Amounts less than 100 million yen are omitted.

The outlook for the global economy is becoming more uncertain, given problems such as the trade dispute between the US and China, and slowing growth in Europe and China. On the other hand, although consideration must be given to the impact of overseas factors, the Japanese economy is expected to maintain a modest recovery, backed by continued improvements in the employment and income environment.

Given this environment, in the Electronics and Information Technology category, we expect solid shipments of substrate glass for LCDs. We expect that glass for electronic devices will continue to recover as a result of solid demand for home appliances, etc., while glass for optical devices is also expected to rebound. In the Performance Materials and Others category, inventory adjustments at glass fiber customers are forecast towards the end of the year, but demand is expected to be resilient. Glass for building materials and heat-resistant glass are seen recovering steadily, and we will proactively take steps to respond to the expansion of demand in China for glass tubing for pharmaceutical and medical use.

In terms of profit/loss, while taking into account the market environment and product pricing, prices for raw materials and fuel, and fluctuations in exchange rates, etc., we will implement initiatives to expand sales, improve productivity, and reduce costs, and thus secure profits.

In light of the above outlook, the Company Group's consolidated earnings forecasts for the full year ending December 31, 2018, remain unchanged from those previously announced on February 5, 2018, as shown in the table above.

The forward-looking statements, including earnings forecasts, contained in these materials are based on certain assumptions deemed to be reasonable by the Company Group and include risks and contingencies. Actual business results may differ substantially due to a number of factors. Factors that may impact actual business results include the economic conditions of global markets, various rules and regulations such as those concerning trade, significant fluctuation of supply and demand of products in principal markets as well as the financial situation showing extensive changes in prices on capital markets, exchange rates, and interest rates, in addition to rapid technological advancement. Factors not mentioned here also could have a significant impact on business results.
